Remarks:  Harry-- I imagine you will not be happy to see once again this business of [ ] contractor access to OCI's CONTROLLED DISSEM and WARNING NOTICE items. Ed Proctor deferred signing because he wondered whether part of the problem arose from OCI's practice of printing "WARNING NOTICE..." inside the cover of its publications. I have since discovered that the articles are selected item-by-item, so apparently the covers have nothing to do with it. We are therefore ready to charge ahead again, along the lines you recommended. Before we do so, perhaps you could glance at a few changes in your draft. I'm also running it past [ ] in OCI. [ ] has provided a bootleg copy of an evaluation of the [ ] project, which you might find interesting.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence Defense Intelligence Agency

SUBJECT : Contractor Access to Selected CIA CONTROLLED DISSEM
Publications

1. The Advanced Indications Technology Experiment seems to be a useful and imaginative approach to an old problem. We are watching it with interest.

2. Unfortunately, there is no way I can give [redacted] across-the-board access to OCI products marked either CONTROLLED DISSEM or WARNING NOTICE. These controls do not originate within OCI or elsewhere in the Intelligence Directorate; they are carried over from source documents we receive from various collectors. OCI is obliged to retain the restrictions as a condition for using the information they contain.

3. I can, however, make a couple of suggestions that might help, especially as DIA employees take a larger role in the experiment.

b) The DIA people now excising from OCI publications items that the contractors cannot see might, in selected cases, contact NIB Panel Secretary [redacted] and request that OCI try to shake loose the piece -- in whole or in part -- with the originator of the source data. We are not equipped to handle large numbers of requests, but you might wish to try a few to see whether this approach is helpful.

4. I would like to be able to offer more assistance but must, of course, abide by the rules of the collectors.

for Intelligence
